Belgrade Hears Yugoslavia Will Not Join Axis Alliance

OVER 150,000 NAZIS READY FOR LIGHTNING DRIVE FROM BULGARIA

Newspapers in Istanbul warn nation against accepting German assurances; Reports that Britain is rushing equipment and supplies indicate Ankara officials have resolved to fight if Hitler moves toward the Dardanelles; Defenders of island kingdom repulse "Mock Invasion"

ITALIAN HIGH COMMAND CLAIMS SUCCESS IN ATTACK ON CONVOY IN THE MEDITERRANEAN

Balkan military observers heard late today that 150,000 German troops, massed with hundreds of tanks and armored cars on the Greek frontier, may strike into Greek Macedonia and Thrace "within 48 hours."

With the Nazi attack expected at any moment, Turkey adopted a stiff attitude toward Germany.

Turkey's controlled press declared today that the spread of the war in the Balkans seemed inevitable and Great Britain was reported rushing all the equipment she could spare to the Turks.

Greek diplomatic quarters expressed the belief that Turkey would send troops into the mountains of Greece to help combat a German invasion of the little Aegean kingdom.

Turkish newspapers also warned the nation against accepting German assurances. Earlier this week Adolf Hitler sent an urgent message by plane to Turkish President Ismet Inonu, in which the Nazi leader said to have asserted he desired only to look after Turkey's well-being.

Simultaneously, the British disclosed that Britain has already coped with a week-long "mock invasion" probably on a scale greater than Germany could launch.

The sham attack, it was said, featured landings by air and sea, with British staff.

Defenders of the island kingdom were described as having repulsed an assault more successful than any Adolf Hitler could devise.

Informed quarters in London also declared that Tuesday's British-Norwegian naval raid on the German-held Lofoten Islands, on the coast of Norway, was a "rehearsal" for bigger things to come.

It was indicated that the swift-striking British sea raiders, carrying strong landing parties, have now begun a campaign of sabotaging Nazi-held military and industrial centers along the European coast.

In the Balkans, diplomatic sources in Belgrade predicted that Yugoslavia—under pressure to choose between the Axis and Britain—would refrain from joining the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance for the time being, at least.

Reports that Britain was rushing equipment to Turkey seemed to indicate that Turkey was resolved to fight if Germany moves toward the Dardanelles.

Balkan observers spotted 50 German tanks poised almost within sight of the Turkish frontier.

The initial German onslaught, however—if it comes—was expected to strike into Greece's Struma river valley in Macedonia, a 600-mile corridor leading to the sea at Salonika.

Dispatches from Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, said Gen. Alexander Papagos, commander-in-chief of the Greek army, apparently intended to abandon Thrace as indefensible and make a stand along the natural bastion of the Struma.

These dispatches reported that the Greeks were already clearing civilians out of Thrace—the northernmost province along the Turkish border, which Bulgaria has long coveted as an outlet to the Aegean sea.

If the Greeks should elect to fight on the Struma, abandoning Thrace, they would have only a 25-mile-wide front to defend along the Bulgarian frontier.

Yugoslavia's role in the crisis remained a mystery, but authoritative quarters in Belgrade, the Yugoslav capital, said Regent Prince Paul had conferred last Monday with Adolf Hitler at the Führer's Berchtesgaden retreat.

Belgrade heard that a statement reiterating Yugoslavia's neutrality might be expected within a few hours.

Yugoslav leaders conferred at length yesterday, but a subsequent communiqué said only that "independence and unity" of the state were being kept constantly in view.

Yugoslavia's decision was expected to have an important bearing on the fate of Greece and the attitude of Turkey, which is adhering to a watchful waiting policy. The extent of British backing for Greece also was said to be an important factor in Turkey's attitude.

It was believed the Turks would give a non-committal answer—perhaps over next week—to Adolf Hitler's note of last Tuesday, in which he was said to have told President Ismet Inonu that Germany had no aggressive aims on Turkey.

Indications that Britain was still busy in the Middle East diplomatic front were seen in the arrival in Cairo of the foreign minister of Iraq, presumably for talks with British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden.

On the African war front the principal development was an announcement by the British that their troops had occupied Fer-Fer (Turn to Page Thirteen)

RUSSELL STATES JOB IS IN SIGHT FOR ALL IN STATE

For First Time in Decade, Secretary of Public Assistance Declares in Radio Address, There is Hope for All Unemployed

RELIEF FOR TAXPAYERS

Harrisburg, March 7.—(P)—For the first time in a decade, says Secretary of Public Assistance Howard L. Russell, a job is in sight for everyone in Pennsylvania who can work.

He said in a state-wide radio address last night that Pennsylvania's relief situation now is "more favorable than at any time in the last eight years," and added:

"Moreover, the outlook for the future is one of hope for the unemployed, and relief for the taxpayer."

Citing a decrease of $1,000,000 a week in relief expenditures in the last two years with a reduction of 102,000 cases in relief rolls, he declared "and we have not yet experienced the full impact of the defense program on employment."

"For the first time in a decade, we can sight the goal of a job for everyone who can work," he added.

Russell directs a relief program that has cost the state $100,000,000 a year in the last few years. His address was one of a series by administration heads, recounting the functioning of their departments since Governor James took office two years ago.

He said that despite the drop in relief roles of employable persons, there remained large groups "of the blind, the aged and the dependent children and the handicapped."

Better Not Put That Snow Shovel Away Yet

Washington, March 7.—(P)—Snow, sleet and rain fell over middle Atlantic states today in a wintry blast that may become weather bureau forecasters said.

The worst of the season for much of the area.

The bureau issued a "heavy snow" warning for an area extending from West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland north into Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.

Such a warning is issued only when forecasters expect four inches of snow or more. The storm originated in the south and as it moved northward through Alabama and Tennessee into Kentucky it turned from rain into sleet and snow. The fall of snow was expected to be heaviest tonight.

The bureau said the storm most likely would make highway traveling hazardous and it was impossible in some sections particularly in the mountain regions of West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and New York.

The storm was not accompanied by extremely low temperatures, however.

MAY NAME AGENCY FOR LABOR

President Discloses He is Considering Creation of Board Which Would Act Not Only as Mediation Bureau But Would Consider Problems of Workmen, Production and Other Factors Entering Into Disputes

WOULD NOT REQUIRE SPECIAL LEGISLATION

Washington, March 7.—(P)—President Roosevelt disclosed today that he was considering creation of a labor board which would act not only as a mediation agency but would consider problems of labor, production and other factors entering into labor disputes.

The chief executive told a press conference he could only generalize about the proposed board, but that it would not be merely a revival of the old Taft-Waish board of World War days, since it might have a broader field.

At the same time, the chief executive spoke out against jurisdictional strikes among union men.

"As a whole," he was asked, "do you think it desirable to do away with jurisdictional strikes?"

Absolutely, he replied. He added he did not think the country could approve in any shape, way or form a jurisdictional strike like one called at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

Jurisdictional strikes are part of a general situation that is under study, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, but he admitted he did not know exactly what might be done about them.

The proposal to set up a new labor board in Washington, he said, would not require legislation.

The chief executive emphasized that the board would not be superimposed over the office of production management, but would be a separate agency.

He said it would look ahead toward longer range policy, and even to the distribution of plant facilities, so that it could consider any unwarranted concentration of labor at any one point after the current emergency is over.

The board would not consider some of the minor labor problems and disputes, Mr. Roosevelt said. (Turn to Page Six)

STIFF PENALTY ON NORWEGIANS

Svolvær, Norway (Via Berlin), March 7.—(P)—Reichskommissar Joseph Terboven has decreed that all property belonging to the families of Norwegians who voluntarily followed the British or aided them during the surprise raid on the Lofoten islands Tuesday should be burned.

The decree was issued following Terboven's arrival here Tuesday night after the raid. Those remaining who helped the British while they were ashore were arrested. One Norwegian was shot the same night for recalcitrance.

The population of Oestvagoy island, on which Svolvær is situated, was fined 100,000 kroner and the municipality required to maintain the families of those who were taken to England as prisoners.

By The Associated Press

London, March 7.—Informed British said today Tuesday's harassing raid by British and Norwegian naval units on the German-held Lofoten islands off Norway's coast was just a "rehearsal" for bigger things to come.

The intimation was that swift sea raiders carrying strong landing parties, and capitalizing on the element of surprise, had begun a campaign of sabotaging Nazi-controlled military and industrial centers along the European coast.

Restrictions Affect Magicians in Reich

New York, March 7.—(P) Wartime restrictions have hit the German sleight-of-hand performer—the old standbys of making eggs disappear and pulling rabbits out of hats have been banned.

The food rationing system is responsible, says Editor John Muhlolland of the magical magazine, the Sphinx. Any illusion using food or its likeness is forbidden, because it might cause dissension in the audience.

"The Nazis have taken over all the magical societies," he added, "and made them a part of the Reich. In occupied France, I understand no French magician may travel from unoccupied to occupied territory. They've found them too expert at carrying verboten communications."

INFANTRY PUTS ON BIG SHOW AT INDIANTOWN GAP

Series of Spectacular Demonstrations of the Tactics of Full Strength Battalion, Bayonet Technique And Grenade Throwing Staged

BY RICE YAHNER
Associated Press Correspondent

Indiantown Gap, March 7.—(P)—The infantry showed 'em all how to do it on Pennsylvania's military reservation today, in a series of spectacular demonstrations of the tactics of a full-strength battalion, bayonet technique, hand-grenade throwing and motorized patrols.

It was a long show, beginning with three squads of riflemen from the first battalion of the 110th Infantry, plunging their bayonet on a dead run, into burlap-covered bundles of faggots and ending with more than 850 men of the 109th and 110th Infantry maneuvering in the broad valley to demonstrate tactics against an attack of air or mechanized forces.

Officers of other regiments were shown how it all should be done so that, beginning next week, they can do it with their own troops during the first 12-week period of basic training.

The number of patients in the hospital passed the 400 mark today, the daily average increase of about 50. Post medical officers did not consider the rate unusual for the first week that most of the 13,500 men were in camp. Almost (Turn to Page Thirteen)

BOMB SHELTERS ARE DISCUSSED BY HINES

Harrisburg, March 7.—(P)—State Secretary of Labor and Industry Lewis G. Hines says Pennsylvania does not intend "to be caught napping" in the event bomb shelters are ever required in this country.

Hines met yesterday with officials from Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton in a move to "reconcile" state and city building codes "in the interest of national defense."

Three cities are the only ones whose building codes are not under state jurisdiction.

PLAN EXTENSION OF GUARD DUTY

Washington, March 7.—(P)—War Department officials said today the army may ask congress for authority to keep the National Guard in service for an additional six months or a year.

Whether the Guardsmen are kept in uniform beyond the current year's period of training will depend, it was explained, on the tenaciousness of the international situation.

Some 240,000 guard officers and men have been mobilized thus far under the authority congress voted last summer.

Should they be demobilized at the conclusion of the current year's service, the army might be faced with a "serious situation" because of a shortage of trained manpower to train the selective service recruits (Turn to Page Six)

SUGGESTS ELECTION REFORMS

Senate Campaign Investigating Committee, Reporting That Major Parties Had Spent Almost $22,000,000 at Minimum, During 1940 Contest, Recommends Congress Fix Limits on Funds

TEN OBJECTIVES TO BE ATTAINED CITED

Washington, March 7.—(P)—The Senate campaign investigating committee, reporting that the major parties had spent almost $22,000,000, at a minimum, during the 1940 presidential contest, recommended today that congress fix rigid limits on political funds and tighten up other federal election laws.

Republican groups were credited with expenditures of almost $15,000,000, and Democrats, with more than $6,000,000.

The special committee submitted a 10-point political reform program in its 191-page final report, which included separate, sharply-worded minority statements from Senator Tobey (R-NH).

Tobey, in his reports, asked a congressional investigation of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, N. J., powerful Democratic leader; charged that Oliver A. Quayle, Democratic national committee leader had "lied brazenly and unhesitatingly" to the committee; questioned $300,000 loaned to Democrats by E. J. Reynolds; and criticized primary expenditures by Senator Radcliff (D-Md.).

The special committee offered no specific "remedial legislation" but cited 10 "objectives" to be attained and suggested that the regular Senate committee on privileges and elections frame actual legislation.

The majority found that existing federal laws seeking to limit expenses of a presidential campaign to $3,000,000 and individual contributions to $5,000 in one year had been "largely ineffective."

Other suggested reforms included: A curb on "false, libelous, and scurrilous campaign literature"; A bar on "pernicious political activities" by the thousands of former committeemen who administer federal farm program (the agriculture department contends these farmers are not covered by present acts);

A prohibition against "coercion" (Turn to Page Thirteen)

Columbia, La., March 7.—(P)—District Attorney C. C. Minard this morning positively forbade Sheriff G. E. Eversine of Caldwell Parish, to permit four condemned prisoners here to broadcast over radio station KLMB of Monroe just before their execution at noon today.

The four condemned men had prepared radio manuscripts running from 80 to 500 words and were scheduled to take the air about 11 a. m. (GST). Microphones had been placed in their death cells by the Monroe station for the broadcasts in which the prisoners emphasized in advance copies given to the press that "crime does not pay," and told relatives farewell. Gettysburg, March 7.—(P)—John A. Miller, 32-year-old Hamilton township school teacher, was discharged last night for refusing to lead his pupils in saluting and pledging allegiance to the American flag at coming exercises.

The township's board of education voted unanimously to dismiss him after considering testimony given at a hearing last Monday. The dismissal is effective today.

Miller, member of a religious group that opposes the flag salute as idolatrous, has 30 days in which to appeal to the state superintendent of public instruction. After his hearings he said he would take this action if dismissed.

Torrio's boast is that his office collects $60 in taxes for every dollar it spends—taxes that would not otherwise be paid. Annenberg was his biggest money catch. Besides a 3 year prison term, Annenberg promised to pay $8,000,000 in back taxes plus interest and penalties that may bring his bill to more than $12,000,000.

Treasury Calculates it Will Make About $98.88 "Profit" on Every $100 Paid In Washington, March 7.—(P)—The treasury calculated today it will make about $98.88 "profit" on every $100 in income tax paid by some 15,000,000 Americans currently struggling over their returns.

In other words, the statisticians found the treasury was spending $1.12 for every $100 in income tax it collected.

The overhead goes into such items as printing up more than 50,000,000 blanks, hiring collectors and bookkeepers, catching swindlers, correcting honest taxpayers' mistakes, and doing research.

One of the most important items of overhead is investigation to trap willful tax evaders. This work is headed by Elmer L. Irey, who went to high school with G. man J. Edgar Hoover.

DISTRICT MEET OF PURCHASING AGENTS IS HELD

About fifteen members from this section last night attended the meeting of the Northwestern Pennsylvania Purchasing Agents Association, held in the Blue and White dining room.

After the usual dinner and business session, an open discussion on purchasing procedure was held, a paper was read on "priorities", which explained the operation of the regulation in detail, and a report on the zinc and copper situation was given. This latter paper revealed that there is some shortage in individual cases, but no need for immediate alarm. To complete the program a DuPont film, "The Story of Neoprene," was shown, outlining the advantages of the new substitute for rubber.

This is the fifth of a series of hands showing how experts have been tripped up by their own exactness. Mrs. Olga Hilliard, donor of the national mixed pair trophy, defended today's hand against one of the outstanding woman players of the country.

Mrs. Hilliard sat in the East position. Her partner opened the deuce of hearts, and when North played low, Mrs. Hilliard put on the queen, not the jack. Immediately the declarer assumed that West held the jack of hearts. South won the trick with the ace and took a diamond finesse, which Mrs. Hilliard refused to win.

Now a spade was won by declarer with the ace and a spade returned, Mrs. Hilliard winning with the king. She could see that a club exit would be too low, as a diamond could be established for a heart discard. So she quickly pushed out the five of hearts.

Now, our expert in the South reading West for the jack of hearts, thought that if she played the ten-spot, West would cover with the jack and she would have to lose a trick to the nine-spot. There was a possibility however, that East might hold the nine of hearts, and in that case if South played low, the jack would be trapped.

South did play low. West played the nine and dummy's king won. But now declarer must still lose the ace of clubs, the king of diamonds and the jack of hearts and the contract was defeated.

PROPERTY TAX SALES STOPPED UNTIL AUGUST

County sales of property for delinquent taxes were halted in Pennsylvania today, at least until August 1, by Governor James approval of a resolution adopted by the House and Senate, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg.

The resolution pledged the General Assembly to enact "suitable" legislation to validate its action later in the current session. Tax sales had been due to start May 1 under the present law.

The governor signed the resolution late yesterday—the latest of a series of actions pending in the legislature to meet the delinquent tax problem. The legislators had adopted it before adjourning for the week.

It authorizes county treasurers of the various counties, with the consent of the county commissioners and the common pleas courts, to "adjourn or further adjourn any tax sale and advertising of said sale not later than August 1, 1941."

It does not bind the Assembly to pass a tax abatement bill of which there are two in the House and one in the Senate, along with several kindred measures, but gives the legislature further time to study the problem.

"The tax abatement problem is one of the most complicated and difficult problems in the legislature, both from a technical and economic standpoint," declared Robert E. Woodside, Jr., of Dauphin county, House Republican floor leader.

He pointed out that the various counties have various systems of handling tax delinquencies and that properties were also subject for sale by failure of owners to pay municipal or school taxes.

Tax abatement measures first started in Pennsylvania in 1930, generally do two things. Allow for the payment in a lump sum of back taxes without interest or penalties and likewise, provide for a property owner to pay certain back taxes in installments of 20 percent each over a five year period, provided that he keeps his current taxes paid up during that time.

THE FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER

Experience and Character

FRIDAY, MARCH 7 "Knowing that patience [worketh] experience"

"Endurance [produceth] character" (Romans 5:4 Moffatt and Goodspeed) Read James 1:1-6

Either translation will do but the recent are the more suggestive. Patient endurance of trouble is a vital virtue but it is only a link in St. Paul's golden chain. Something must come of endurance or else we should have no heart to endure even experience is not the end. What we become through experience is life's issue.

Character is patience triumphant. Experience made alive and the harvest the soul has gathered from the contributions of the years. It is no quick or easy growth. It is matured through light and shadow, through having known and borne much. Character is the demonstration that life has been the servant of our spirits that life's battles have left us no wounds for which we have not found healing nor met us with any challenge from which we have not won victorious strength. All that made it may pass having served its ends. Character endures our harvest and God's harvest in us from the fields of time.

PRAYER O Eternal Father help us we beseech Thee to gather from the experience we call life such qualities of soul that the fruits of the Spirit may be manifested in us. Give us grace to win courage from danger goodness from trial love from having much to try us and having overcome, to say of what we once sought to "escape" that too was best. In Jesus name, Amen.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Losses From Casualties, Theft, and Wages

To be deductible a loss arising from "fires, storms, shipwrecks or other casualty" need not be connected with the taxpayer's trade or business. If his home or his automobile is destroyed by fire or his summer bungalow damaged by flood or storm, he may claim a deduction for the loss sustained.

Loss of property by theft or burglary is an allowable deduction and need not be incurred in trade or business. Hence, the loss occasioned by the theft of jewelry or an automobile used for pleasure and convenience is deductible. It must be established, however, that the property actually was stolen. Should circumstances attending the loss leave the owner in doubt as to whether it was stolen or lost, the claim would not be allowed.

Losses from wageing transactions are allowable only to the extent of the gains from such transactions. A loss is deductible only in the year in which it is sustained even though, as in the case of a theft or casualty, it may not be discovered until a later year. Losses compensated for by insurance or otherwise, of course are not deductible. However, in the event the amount of insurance is not sufficient to recompense for the loss sustained, the excess of the loss over the amount of the insurance is deductible.

In general, losses for which an amount may be deducted for income-tax purposes must be evidenced by closed and completed transactions fixed by identifying fluctuation of the market or other events, bona fide and actually sustained during the taxable period for which claimed. For instance, a person possessing stock of a corporation cannot deduct from gross income any amount claimed as a loss merely on account of shrinkage in value of such stock through

THE DARDANELLES
German occupation of Bulgaria forecasts that the Dardanelles, one of the world's historic highways to conquest by sea, may again become the focal point in a new major theatre of battle.

The Dardanelles, the map printed in Tuesday's issue will show, controls the only logical route for sea-powerless Germany to Asia Minor and guards on the south a possible route by which Nazi troops may seek to aid the floundering Italian forces in Albania.

For the Dardanelles to play a strategic role in war is nothing new. Ever since the Trojan Wars thirty-centuries ago, the Dardanelles (then called the Hellespont) has regularly made military news. A 42-mile channel, one to five miles wide, separating southeast Europe from southwest Asia and uniting the Sea of Marmora and the Black Sea with the Aegean and the Mediterranean, its narrow and meandering course makes it a formidable natural fortress.

The Dardanelles' importance was emphasized in ancient times by the Trojan War and by the crossings of Xerxes and Alexander—the former in 480 B. C., to enter Europe, the latter in 334 B. C. to enter Asia. The Crimean War was fought to keep the Strait from Russian control.

There also, according to legend, Leander swam nightly to visit Hero, a feat performed in more recent times by the poet Byron and the late Richard Halliburton, adventurer.

In one of the most costly and most fruitless operations of the World War the Allies tried to help Russia and sever Turkey from Germany by forcing passage of the Dardanelles. Landings were actually made on the rocky, sterile northwestern coast, but British bungling, plus lack of forces and material resulted in the crushing Gallipoli defeat, in which 36,000 British lives were lost—Winston Churchill's great failure of the first World War.

Demilitarized after the war, the Dardanelles was recently reformed by Turkey, when she was given the right to do so by the Montreux Conference in 1936.
Today its shores are heavily studded with hidden batteries.

FUTURE FARMERS

What is going to be the situation on Pennsylvania farms as the national emergency develops? Probably the answer can't be provided off-hand, but there is one fact: One out of every 26 rural boys who have completed a year or more of instruction in a vocational agricultural school in recent years either owns or is buying a farm.

A survey conducted by Dr. Francis Haas, of the Department of Public Instruction, reveals that of 26,841 out-of-school farm boys, 1,089 own or are buying their farms. 812 are renting them and 7,718 are part owners with their fathers. The survey further reveals that approximately 70 per cent of the farm boys who have studied vocational agriculture go into the occupation of farming, or into occupations closely allied to agriculture.

Splendid work which State College is doing in the matter of farm extension, and constructive suggestions offered by the Warren County Farm Bureau and Vocational supervisors, are most helpful. The farm situation in this section is better than it has been in many years, through consistent progress made in the last decade.

For one of the greatest thrills ever experienced residents of the borough and county owe a debt of gratitude to Lowell Thomas, his sponsors, and the Conewango Club.
It is safe to predict that it will be a long time before another such program, so thoroughly enjoyed in every home, will be made available to the people of the area.
It will doubtless be a long time before Warren receives more favorable widespread publicity.

Speaking of entertainments, don't forget the auditorium show and carnival at the high school this evening under the auspices of the Student Council. Take it from the publicity committee, "the show sparkles with an artistic finish!"

Seems as though there should be fifteen or twenty more young people anxious to take that Civil Pilot Training course. If interested apply at the Warren Airport.

YOUR NATION'S CAPITOL
By Peter Edson
The Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

WHEN IS A FILIBUSTER NOT A FILIBUSTER?
Washington, March 7.—All the arguments that can be advanced for and against the lease-lend bill have been uttered with gestures known by heart by the galleries in the Capitol, but the debate goes on.

The early Americans coined the word for this. The word was "filibuster" and in those days it meant to equip armed expeditions from the United States to operate against countries with which the United States was at peace. In other words, piracy — Yankee merchants fitting out privateers to prey on British shipping.

Today, in Congress, the word filibuster means talking a thing to death, one congressman getting the floor and keeping it to prevent a vote, yet the old meaning comes home to roost with double significance now — talking against a bill to aid a country with which the United States is at peace.

Officially, the senators talking against the lease-lend bill don't admit this is a filibuster. Their strategy, as it shows now, is to invite people from all over the country to wire in or write in their senators, telling them to filibuster the lease-lend bill if they have to. But actual filibuster is the last resort.

People outside of Washington, who never saw a filibuster in action and probably never will, but who did see the movie "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," will get their best idea of a filibuster by remembering in that picture where Jimmy Stewart, playing the part of young Senator Smith, talked all night and then some to defeat a bill he thought was crooked. That was a real filibuster, wandering on about anything that came to his head, reading the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, anything.

There has been nothing like that so far in these lease-lend proceedings, which have been marked by sticking closely to the subject, even though making the same points over and over.

There have been 16 filibusters in the Senate since the first one, back in 1841, on a debate to oust the Senate printer. It lasted a week. Forty years later, in the debate over organization of the Senate, there was a filibuster that lasted from March 24 to May 16. Most famous of the filibusters was in 1922, on the Dyer anti-lynch bill, when Pat Harrison and a group of southern senators made lengthy speeches about changing commas and the exact minute the vice president entered the chamber, in correcting the reading of the previous day's record, a formally usually dispensed with. They longest one-man speech on record was old Senator Bob La Follette's 18-hour and 23-minute filibuster against a currency bill in 1908. Craziest filibuster on record was Huey Long's reading of "pot licker" recipes in 1935.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Eire Fights to Keep Hard Won Independence
EIRE, last of European countries to win national sovereignty, is caught in the middle of an Irish war. And the Irish, remembering 700 years' struggle for freedom, want to keep out of this scrap.

Three years ago, on Dec. 29, 1937, Ireland shook off all British control as the new constitution of the republic of Eire became effective. The constitutional commemorative stamp, above, marked the birth of the independent nation.

Invasion and conquest would be no new experience for the Irish. They have been embroiled in wars and internal strife for centuries.

A thousand years before the birth of Christ, Partholans and Nemedians battled in Ireland. Fierce, Danu tribes and Scots ruled in turn. The Danes came in 800 in turn. Eire were driven out 200 years later.

Strife with England dates from 1172, when Henry II sought to gain possession of the island. The entire country came under English rule during Elizabeth's reign. Bitter, guerrilla warfare swept the island during World War years. Finally, in 1922, the Irish Free State was created. Today, the outlawed Irish Republican Army continues agitation for inclusion of English-ruled Ulster in Eire.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK—It was just a little more than a year ago that Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse walked into Howard Cullman's office and said, "Look, we've got what we think is a pretty good property. It's a play based on Clarence Day's 'Life With Father.' You can get in on it if you want to."

"Fine," said Cullman, and wrote out a check for $5,000.

It should be stated that risking five grand is not necessarily a nervy gamble for Howard Cullman, who is several times a millionaire and who is an experienced hand at investing in Broadway adventures. Nor is his judgment always infallible. He knows what it means to crouch in the aisles and watch the turkeys flutter out the stage door, bearing his greenbacks with them. But he does have a knack, or a gift, or maybe it is just the luck, to win more often than he loses. So in this instance he put up five thousand—and already, so I am told, his return is in excess of $75,000.

CULLMAN is one of those curious products of the Big Street who came to the theater through its back door. In private life he is vice chairman of the Port Authority of New York, a trustee of the Beekman Street hospital, and a tobacco man.

He obtained his theatrical baptism some years ago when the affected interests asked him to take over the Roxy theater and try to pull it out of the red. Until it was eclipsed by the Musi-Hall, the Roxy was a sort of ornate, gaudy eighth wonder of the Manhattan world. It was, and is, a cinema house on 7th Ave. at 50th street, and in those days it was something to talk about. But it earned no dividends for its stockholders. This was the signal for Cullman to arrive upon the scene, and they say he did a first rate job.

During his off moments, however, Cullman is an alert show hawk with a fast check book. Sometimes he misses. He was in on a turkey not so long ago that cost him $20,000. But this year, besides "Life With Father," he is in on "Charley's Aunt," which is a money maker, and he has a part in "Old Acquaintance" with Peggy Wood and Jane Cowl, which is also a thriving little investment. In sum, he is a good man for prospective producers with plays on their hands to know.

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON—Let's suppose that you were in Washington in 1923—or ten years later—and you were making your first trip back since then. Today, if you had a few hours to run over the superficial aspects of the national capital, you probably would say, "Well, there are a lot of new buildings—there are more people, it seems, but I don't think the District has changed a lot."

And that is where you would be dead wrong. It might take you a few days more to discover it, but you would find out that "national defense" has changed Washington more than anything since the British took over in 1812.

Under national defense, life in Washington is hitting a new tempo. The old order is changing, and a new is coming in. It's difficult to say where one should start to explain it, but I'm going to start with society. When a city's society turns upside down—and I mean champagne, white-tie, and mink coat society—then a city is no longer what it used to be.

New Drivers In The Seat

ACCORDING to the society writers on the pulse of every shining and shin-digger that rates caps in the capital bluebook, the "old Washingtonians" and the "diplomatic new" who always have ruled the Washington social roost in the past—have not only taken a back seat, but aren't doing any driving from there. After all, what frosted and frosty widow of the Roosevelt era can compete with the Stetins, the new Supreme Court justices, the Knudsens, the Knoxes, the Morgenthau's, the Jacksons and the Joneses of today? But there is something more than that. The day when the embassies and legations could send all social Washington a-flutter with an all-out party is gone. What ambassadors and ministers haven't lost their countries? Some haven't, but aren't those either at war or so at odds that any entertainment is a mockery?

Just A Beginning

THAT is just the beginning of what national defense has done to Washington. Since the war started in Europe less than two years ago, more than 30,000 persons have been put to work here. Think what that means in a community of something over 650,000. In September, 1939, there were approximately 125,000 persons working here for Uncle Sam. The latest estimate is around 158,000 and hiring goes on at about 500 a day.

What does that do to our community? It booms it. Rents (long ago among the highest in the country) are oozing up again. The cost of living would make a housewife from Crossroads Corners turn green—did not with envy. The city fathers insist there is nothing to all this, but I have been told about these four rent cases: (1) A huge apartment project upped its rentals in the $50-$60 range from $2.50 to $4. (2) A friend renting a $90 house was informed that he had to move out on pay $125. (3) Another in a $50 house got a $20 a month raise. (4) An upper bracket lessee took a place for $300 a month, only to meet persons who had turned it down a few months before at $250.

Much New Building

THERE is building going on all over Washington—public building and private—and although there are houses and apartments for rent or sale at no more than they were a year ago, the government office situation in many departments has passed the over-crowding stage.

There are other phases of national defense effect on Washington life—too many to list. A few can be enumerated. Retail business is booming, but there are some other cities in the army camp and defense industrial centers where the monthly index shows greater gains. Society life and night life are moving at high speed. And friendships are being made and broken over leasques as defense partisans vigorously assert their views and their new alignments.

To the folks in the hinterlands, it may be petty, but to those in the capital's front trenches, life under national defense is far from dull.

First Evangelical Women's Missionary Unit Has Birthday

There was a very large attendance last evening for the 58th anniversary meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Evangelical church, held in the Folkman parlors.

A memorial service was conducted in memory of Mrs. George L. Folkman, founder of the unit, whose death occurred five years ago. Mrs. Paul Mathis read a letter which "Grandma" Folkman had written in 1935, when she gave up her work with the group. Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Pang, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Mathis, sang one of the founder's favorite hymns, "In the Sweet Bye and Bye."

Mrs. W. L. Arnold, president of the society for the past 17 years, gave interesting impressions of early days in the society, when she first entered its membership.

Miss Pearl Lund, Methodist missionary on furlough from Korea, gave a fine talk concerning present conditions in that field and the difficulties faced there by the Christian church because of the Japanese control of all activities.

At the close of her talk, Mrs. Arnold presented her with a lovely bouquet of jonquils.

To close the program, the hostesses served refreshments in buffet style.

Chicago Educators Are to be Speakers For Mothers' Club

The Pre-School Mothers' Club members are looking forward to their March meeting as one of the most worth while in the organization's history, when Dr. and Mrs. Garry Cleveland Myers, nationally known educators and educators from Chicago, Ill., will be presented as speakers.

The meeting, originally scheduled at the Y. W. C. A., has been changed to Founders Hall of the First Methodist church and will take place on Monday evening, March 17, starting at eight o'clock. In addition to addresses by the two visitors, it is planned to conclude with a social time and refreshments.

In order that the committee may know for how many to prepare, reservations must be made no later than Tuesday by calling Mrs. John Smallman, 2154.

Members are privileged to invite their husbands and other guests for this program-meeting. On the committee are Mrs. E. C. Lowrey, Mrs. Stewart Beckley, Mrs. Donald Harris, Mrs. C. P. Spiridon, Mrs. M. A. Ahlgren and Mrs. E. M. Jensen.

Mrs. Smallman stated today that friends of the club interested in attending this program may secure tickets at the Gaughn Drug Store until Saturday evening.

Both Dr. and Mrs. Myers have taught children and youths at every level from the first grade to the university, inclusive. Dr. Myers is editor of "Children's Activities," a magazine for children that is published in Chicago, and Mrs. Myers is associate editor of the same publication.

These editors and child experts have traveled throughout Europe, as well as over nearly all of North America. Numerous researches in scientific journals and many books have their names as joint authors. Dr. Myers writes a daily syndicated newspaper column addressed to parents, which reaches about three million homes a day in the United States and Canada.

Statements of Doomed Killers Not Broadcast

An unnamed authority in Baton Rouge.

Sheriff Erskine made no comment.

The men, William Meharg, 25, William H. Adams, 39, Floyd Boyce, 29, and William Landers, 39, were convicted of slaying Frank Gartman, Columbia posseman, during their flight from an Arkansas prison farm from which they escaped last September 2.

The statements, ranging from 80 to 500 words, had been prepared for broadcast over station KLMB of Monroe, La.

"I feel hard toward nobody," Boyce wrote in his statement, "xxx but sometimes it is hard to forgive when you know a lot of misery and suffering could be avoided if those in charge tried a little more to live by the golden rule. May this be a lesson to all the boys who are doing wrong. And now goodbye, and I hope to meet you all in heaven."

Heard, in his statement, asserted:

"I would like to tell all of the youngsters and old timers, too, that crime does not pay. There is no such thing as 'easy money.' A very small percentage end up as I am, but they pay just the same."

Meharg devoted most of his statement in tribute to his mother, whom he called "the sweetest mother in the world."

"During the time I was wasting my life in crime and sin," he wrote, "my dear mother was praying that I would not be taken from this life in that sinful condition and I am happy and thankful that her prayers have at last been answered."

Landers, in a brief statement, wrote there was not much "a fellow can say at a time like this. x x x. May God bless my dear wife and little son. x x x. Goodbye to you all."

The four were among 36 convicts who escaped the Arkansas prison. They were surrounded in a swamp near here after a series of motor thefts, abductions wrecks and gun fights with officers.

Gartman, member of a posse attempting to catch the men, was killed by a shotgun charge. The posse was seeking to release two girls and a youth, held as hostages by the convicts. The youths escaped unharmed.

Asked whether Philip Murray, president of the CIO, had expressed opposition to a federal mechanism such as the president outlined, Mr. Roosevelt replied in the negative.

To a question whether Murray was in general agreement with him, the president said he would say that things were going along very well.

Murray called on the president at the latter's request, earlier in the week.

The president said he did not see how reporters could write a story about the contemplated board without being didactic and therefore wrong.

He suggested that they leave it as a very glittering generality since regional problems, industry problems, cost of living problems and others are involved.

WARREN LAUDED BY NEWSMAN IN BROADCAST HERE

Radio listeners all over the globe last night heard Warren described as "a typical American town of fine American people," as Lowell Thomas broadcast his regular evening newscast from the ballroom of the Coneyvango Club where he was the speaker at the annual Ladies Night program.

After summing up the news of the day, Thomas announced to the world that he was in Warren, in the heart of the oil region and on the edge of the Allegheny National Forest, and spoke particularly of the New Process Company and its founder, John L. Blair, commenting that the growth of the company to its present size was a tribute to free America.

The noted newscaster, author and lecturer was suffering from a severe cold and shortly after his arrival in Warren transferred his headquarters to the Carver Hotel where he rested until time for the broadcast.

Following the dinner, served to approximately 250 members and their ladies, Mr. Thomas spoke for an hour and a half on the interesting and amusing incidents of his ten years as a newscaster and gave excerpts from his well known address, "The age of romance and adventure is not dead and giants still walk the earth."

He spoke of his visits to the three forbidden cities of the world and related a number of adventures which, were they not documented, might well have qualified for Lowell Thomas' now famous, "Tall Story Club."

Mr. Thomas was introduced by William E. Rice, chairman of the general entertainment committee. The program was in charge of the March committee which was composed of George Q. Calderwood, Marshall Marshall and K. M. Andrews.

Following his address, Mr. Thomas greeted the members and graciously furnished many autographs. He and his secretary, Miss Ward, were driven to Erie late last night by Archie Anderson and returned to New York by train.

First Evangelical Women's Missionary Unit Has Birthday

There was a very large attendance last evening for the 58th anniversary meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Evangelical church, held in the Folkman parlors.

A memorial service was conducted in memory of Mrs. George L. Folkman, founder of the unit, whose death occurred five years ago. Mrs. Paul Mathis read a letter which "Grandma" Folkman had written in 1935, when she gave up her work with the group. Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Pang, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Mathis, sang one of the founder's favorite hymns, "In the Sweet Bye and Bye."

Mrs. W. L. Arnold, president of the society for the past 17 years, gave interesting impressions of early days in the society, when she first entered its membership.

Miss Pearl Lund, Methodist missionary on furlough from Korea, gave a fine talk concerning present conditions in that field and the difficulties faced there by the Christian church because of the Japanese control of all activities. At the close of her talk, Mrs. Arnold presented her with a lovely bouquet of jonquils.

To close the program, the hostesses served refreshments in buffet style.

An unnamed authority in Baton Rouge, Sherriff Erskine made no comment.

The men, William Meharg, 25, William Heard, 43, Floyd Boyce, 29, and William Landers, 39, were convicted of slaying Frank Garmann, Columbia posseman, during their flight from an Arkansas prison farm from which they escaped last September 2.

The statements, ranging from 80 to 500 words, had been prepared for broadcast over station KLMB of Monroe, La.

"I feel hard toward nobody," Boyce wrote in his statement, "xxx but sometimes it is hard to forgive when you know a lot of misery and suffering could be avoided if those in charge tried a little more to live by the golden rule. May this be a lesson to all the boys who are doing wrong. And now goodbye, and I hope to meet you in heaven."

Heard, in his statement, asserted: "I would like to tell all of the youngsters and old timers, too, that crime does not pay. There is no such thing as 'easy money.' A very small percentage end up as I am, but they pay just the same."

Meharg wrote in tribute to his mother, whom he called "the sweetest mother in the world": "During the time I was wasting my life in crime and sin," he wrote, "my dear mother was praying that I would not be taken from this life in that sinful condition, and I am happy and thankful that her prayers have at last been answered."

Landers, in a brief statement, wrote that he was not much of a fellow and that he was at a time like this. "May God bless my dear wife and little son," he wrote, "and God bless you all."

The four were among 16 convicts who escaped a shotgun charge. The posse was seeking to release two girls and a youth, held as hostages by the convicts. The youths escaped unharmed.

Ohio was the first state to establish an institution for the care of blind children. This was in 1837.

WARREN LAUDED BY NEWSMAN IN BROADCAST HERE

Radio listeners all over the globe last night heard Warren described as "a typical American town of fine American people," as Lowell Thomas broadcast his regular evening newscast from the ballroom of the Conewango Club where he was the speaker at the annual Ladies Night program.

After summing up the news of the day, Thomas announced to the world that he was in Warren, in the heart of the oil region and on the edge of Allegheny National Forest, and spoke particularly of the New Process Company and its founder, John L. Blair, commenting that the growth of the company to its present size was a tribute to free America.

The noted newscaster, author and lecturer was suffering from a severe cold and shortly after his arrival in Warren transferred his headquarters to the Carver Hotel where he rested until time for the broadcast.

Following the dinner, served to approximately 250 members and their ladies, Mr. Thomas spoke for an hour and a half on the interesting and amusing incidents of his ten years as a newscaster and gave excerpts from his well known address, "The age of romance and adventure is not dead and giants still walk the earth."

He spoke of his visits to the three forbidden cities of the world and related a number of adventures which, were they not documented, might well have qualified for Lowell Thomas' now famous, "Tall Story Club."

Asked whether Philip Murray, president of the CIO, had expressed opposition to a federal mechanism such as the president outlined, Mr. Roosevelt replied in the negative.

To a question whether Murray was in general agreement with him, the president said he would say that things were going along very well.

Murray called on the president, at the latter's request, earlier in the week.

The president said he did not see how reporters could write a story about the contemplated board without being didactic and therefore wrong.

He suggested that they leave it as a very glittering generality, since regional problems, industry problems, cost of living problems and others are involved.

Some of the difficulties would be offset, however, officials said, by the expansion of the regular army, which has been increased steadily for the last two years to a present total of nearly 500,000 officers and men.

General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, was reported to feel that a second year's service for the National Guard was advisable in the light of the present international outlook, and that a minimum of six months was indispensable.

How To Relieve Distress Of FEMALE PERIODIC COMPLAINTS

Few women today do not suffer some distress from monthly functional disturbances, causing some to get nervous, cranky, mildly depressed, a couple of days before, with dark circles under eyes, an uncomfortable bloated feeling—others to feel weak, "dragged out" for a couple of days afterward.

If you're troubled this way—try famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made especially for women to help quiet the strung nerves, relieve monthly pain and distress from these periodic disturbances.

Pinkham's Compound helps build up resistance against such symptoms. Famous for 60 years. Hundreds of thousands of women benefited! Worth trying!

ALONG CAME CINDERELLA

By VIVIEN GREY

YESTERDAY: Roger Cosgrave has been awakened by the news that his vivid young wife Lovely has been injured in a motor car smash. They had quarreled before she went out, and when Roger fearfully went to the scene, Lovely was not there. Emily, the family friend to whom he had been engaged before his marriage to Lovely, has tried to comfort him. And now Roger finds a half hysterical note from Lovely in their room.

Chapter 28

Message From Lovely

"WHEN you read this," Lovely wrote, "you'll know what happened tonight because I saw you go when they called you. You were right. I shouldn't have gone. I didn't want to really. I don't know why I did. It wasn't any fun. I was the only one not hurt. I ran away from it because I didn't want your name mixed up with it. I wanted to come home and ask forgiveness. And then when I got here I saw you and Emily together. Isawyou kiss her. And you looked so right together. And I knew then that everything I've ever done has been wrong. I've brought only unhappiness. I should never have stepped between you. I haven't been the sort of wife you should have had. And so now I'm going, Roger my darling. Don't try to find me. You never will."

That was all. And there on the floor was the scuffed mate to the slipper Roger had brought back with him. She must have walked to the house in her stocking feet. Yes, there were the stockings, one was a mass of holes.

Roger was stunned. He was too disturbed for sane thought. Lovely had left him, as she thought, to Emily. But that wasn't the way human lives were disposed of. He'd find her, of course, and bring her back. No matter what had happened she was Lovely and he wanted her back. He knew her waywardness was not a matter of the heart; that it was purely a surface gesture that had nothing at all to do with her love for him.

Meanwhile Lovely forced her car over the slushy parkway to New York with the peculiar luck of the reckless. She automatically headed for the west side and found herself stopping in front of the tenement where Gert lived. She was shivering with something more than cold as she got out of the car and walked up the four flights of stairs. On the landing, at Gert's door, her uplifted hand halted just here. She touched the bell. She remembered with clarity so painful it was like a knife cutting into her heart the last time she had stood so.

Lovely turned then and started slowly down the stairs. That night a thousand years ago, she had not had the courage to face the quarter that raged out at her from behind that shabby, thin, closed door.

Mixed Welcome

"LOVELY! Oh, Lovely, dearest!" Mrs. Hulie opened her arms and took Lovely to her ample bosom. The faint odor of Lovely's expensive perfume glorified the dim, narrow hall.

Joe stood just behind his mother. His eyes narrowed and hardened slightly as he looked at the girl.

"What are you her for?" he asked.

"You certainly know how to welcome an old friend," she said, and laughed up at him.

But Joe wasn't to be fooled. The hardness of his eyes was in his voice as he said: "I told you not to gum it, and now you've gone and done it!"

"You don't know what you're talking about," Lovely flared, anxiety and contrition feeding the flame of anger like oil flowing steadily on a fire.

"You get out of here," Joe said sharply. "Go back where you belong. You made your choice! Have the guts to stick by it!"

"Keep still, Joe," Mrs. Hulie seemed to take on height and dignity. There was authority in her voice. "No one's being put out of this house if they need to come in. Least of all Lovely."

"But Ma, I tell you she's running away from something she's done herself and—"

"Hush your mouth, Joe Hulie! What she's done makes no difference.," his mother said. "It's not for you or me to question Lovely. If the good Lord had meant that you should judge His people you'd have been born with a scepter in your hand."

Joe was looking at Lovely steadily.

"Little idiot," he said. "Just beginning to value what you've run away from—what most people give their lives for."

"Stop that, Joe," said Mrs. Hulie. "Lovely's never done a wrong thing purposely in her life and she's probably got good reasons now."

Lovely could have cried wildly as Joe, at his mother's instructions, opened the stove so it flared up in warm flame and Mrs. Hulie got out an old china tea pot and went through the rite of warming it first with hot water before she put the tea in.

"There's nothing," she said. "Like a dish of tea when your soul or your flesh is tried beyond endurance."

"And your own people," Joe added, looking at Lovely. It was his apology and she understood it. It was taking her back into the fold.

They talked of everything but the things they wanted to talk of. "I suppose I'd better go now," Lovely said, finally without too much assurance.

"And where to at this hour?" asked Mrs. Hulie. "You haven't slept. You'll stay right here. That couch makes a good bed. And maybe you don't want to believe it but I've got extra sheets and blankets—it's almost like I expected this!"

Mrs. Hulie said good night first and went to her room. Then Joe and Lovely stood facing each other in the living room for a tense, silent moment. Every homely detail of the room was imprinted on Lovely's mind so that long years afterwards she would recall it with clarity. The vague pattern of the wall paper and carpet were faded to a monochrome.

There was an ugly mid-Victorian first faint curl of smoke from an honest fire. The mirror over the mantel was spotted and rippled. There was a little figure of a Virgin in blue, and on each side a china vase of faded artificial flowers. On the other wall was a colored framed print of the Lord's Supper and near it was an enlargement of a photograph of Joe's father.

That's the kind of people they are, thought Lovely. Church and family. She was aware of thinking, too, that was the kind the Cosgraves were. So different. Yet so alike.

"When did you come back?" Lovely's question broke the silence.

"Last night," "Funny," Lovely said, "we're both right back where we started."

"With one difference—you aren't staying. I am."

"I'm not so sure, Joe," Lovely's voice was a trace unsteady.

"I am. My love wasn't strong enough to hold you here, Lovely, but it's going to be strong enough to send you back."

Lovely looked at him with misted eyes. The big awkward fellow took on heroic proportions in the homely room. Even so, Lovely had no faith that he could perform miracles. She knew in her inmost heart that finally her mad pursuit of fun had taken her one step too far.

Futile Search

LOVELY lay listening to the sounds of night—garbage cans banging in the hands of collectors, trucks pounding along on night hauls, a tug whistle in the distance. And then came daylight. Quickly. As if a gust of wind blew darkness away.

Mrs. Hulie looked in on Lovely before she started out.

"Don't you get up till you feel like it, dearest. Joe's out on the job already and I'm heading out. There's not a thing to disturb you. There's coffee in the pot and some wild grape jelly in the pantry."

Rain was a dismal gray curtain against the window through which Lovely saw the shabby city only dimly.

And in Westchester the day dawned bleakly. Thick, heavy clouds looked as if any moment they might shower the earth with snow. Emily, awake early, heard Roger pass her door and followed him downstairs. Her face was pale and a little drawn. Her slim white hands looked more helpless than ever.

"I'm going to the city," Roger told her. He didn't have to tell her why. "Hold the fort will you? I mean, don't let mother or dad know what's happened. There's no need. We'll be back before any explanations are needed."

"I hope so. Oh, I hope so, Roger."

Roger made straight for Katie's flat. Katie had lost none of her dewy rosebud prettiness. Her eyes widened with wonder as she heard Roger's story, but there was no help she could give him. She had not seen Lovely.

"But she loved you so," she said in slow awe. And there's Gert. Poor Lovely! She must have been terribly unhappy."

And Gert was for the first time in her life angry with Lovely.

"Like always," Gert said disgustedly. "Quitters Run all through the family. Make a bargain and then run out on it. Pop did it and Mom did it and now Lovely."

"You haven't," Roger said, looking at her plain honest face.

"No, well, maybe it's because I don't dare. Not being good looking makes a difference in you. You don't feel so sure of always getting another chance. I'm not taking any credit for it."

Roger stood and looked at her. He didn't know where else to go to look for Lovely. He had been so sure she would seek one or the other of the women closest to her.

Gert added slowly, as if she were not sure she should tell: "But she was here. Sunny found her handkerchief right here at the door."

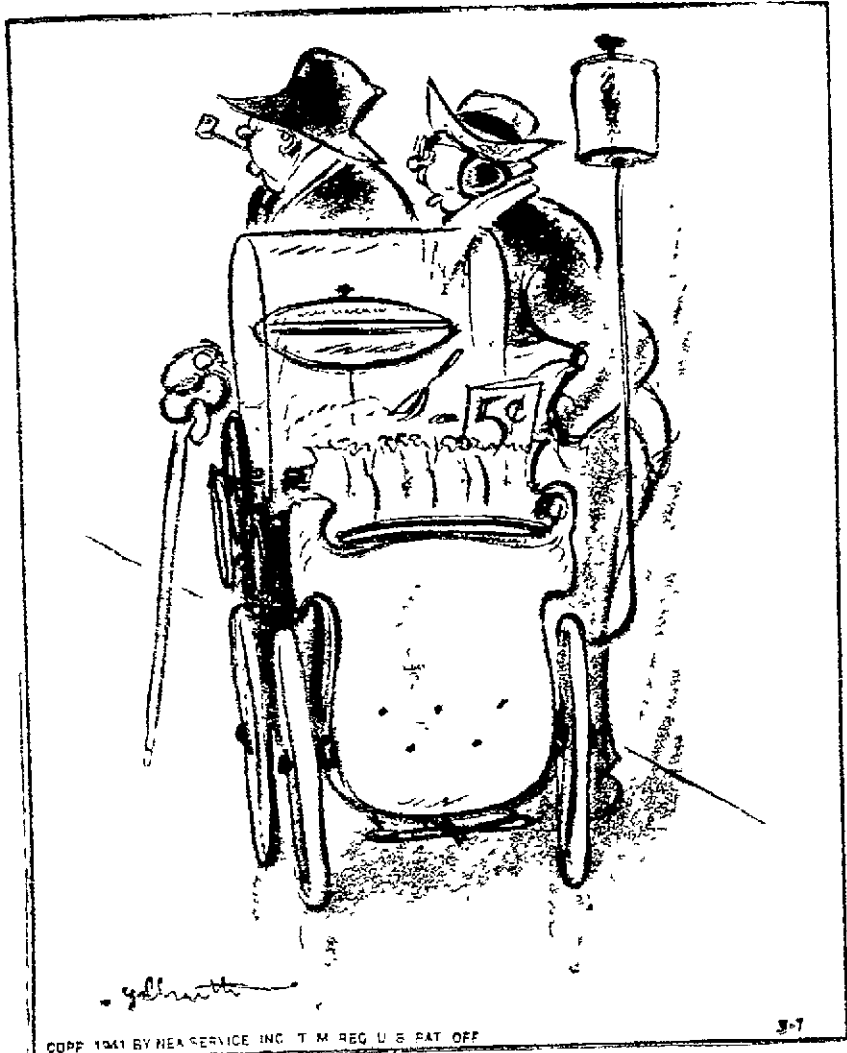

"But she was here. Sunny found her handkerchief right here at the door."

"You'd better have it."

Record Attendance at Quarterly Session of Warren County Pomona

The quarterly session of Warren County Pomona Grange No. 10, meeting Thursday in Brokenstraw Grange Hall at Youngsville, had the largest attendance recorded in its history. At least 250 persons were present and the women of Brokenstraw Grange served the noon meal to 100, another record in the county group's activities.

Further proof of the record attendance was seen last evening when it became necessary to rent another hall for conferring of the fifth degree upon a class of 20 candidates. Acting for the first time was a new degree team which will, in the future, confer the lower degrees for subordinate granges of the county. Starting this evening will be the third and fourth degrees at Chandeliers Valley on March 18.

The new master of Pomona is Leo Johnson, also master of Brokenstraw, very capable and with a genuine interest in promotion of Grange principles. He delivered the welcome to the large gathering and Kenneth Holden, of Mountain Grange at Tididoute, voiced the response.

It was decided the next meeting, in June, would be held with Scandia unit, which will observe its 50th anniversary. Second choice was Corvdon.

Announcement was made concerning Pennsylvania State College April 9, 10 and 11 and of the regional conference at Columbus on March 20, taking in Crawford, Warren, Forest and Erie counties.

An invitation was extended by Chautauqua County Grange for a meeting at Busti, N. Y., on March 13, 14, the fifth degree to be conferred by the hostess team on the evening of the first session.

Little Richard Swanson celebrated his seventh birthday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Algot Swanson. Guests present were Curtis Nelson, Nan Nelson, Mrs. Ernest Swanson and children, Kathryn, Margaret Ann, and David, Mrs. LeRoy Johnson and children, Delores and Alfred Johnson, and Mrs. LeRoy Johnson, all of Ludlow and Mrs. Fred Sapper of Erie.

The dinner sponsored by the Legion and Auxiliary Saturday from 5 to 7 at the I. O. O. F. hall proved very successful. Dinner was served to more than two hundred people. The proceeds are to be used to buy gifts for those in the selective service.

Margaret Carlson, a nurse at the Huron Road Hospital in Cleveland, spent the weekend visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Carlson.

Mr. and Mrs. Gust Lynn and Mrs. Forman, of Kane, were Sunday callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Swanson.

Clarence Bair and Emily Louise Stone, of Milbourne, N. J., were weekend visitors at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bair, of Wetmore. He said goodbye to his parents, and other relatives before leaving for Camp Dix N. J. for training.

Mr. and Mrs. Loyal Elder and daughter Carol and son Rodney, Fredrika Carlson and Bill Killmeyer, all of Pittsburgh, spent the weekend visiting at the home of Mrs. Elder and Miss Carlson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gust Carlson. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hoffman

PEEKING AHEAD INTO SPRING...

Military Motifs in Coats Reflect Interest in National Defense

National Defense is reflected in the spring overcoat picture... the military note is frequent... with brass buttons and chevrons galore. Other starred coat fashion news includes the push-up, bloomersleeve, to wear with longer gloves... muddy collars... detachable capes in a wide variety of lengths... the rounded shoulder that slopes gently in a natural sort of way... dolman sleeves with shoulders that really slope... trapunto decoration.

The smartest casual coats are given that category simply because they are of soft, informal-looking wools. In line, they often resemble closely so-called non-casual coats of sleek twills and hard, smooth fabrics. The fabric determines whether a coat is casual or dressy.

In casuals, greens, butterscotch, warm browns and dusty pastels, including pink and blue, are top ranking colors. Dressier coats run more to navy blue and beige than to black at the moment.

In general, the coat silhouette is slimmer. It's easy enough to find fitted and flared models and a great many boxy types, but, even in these, the former variety is less billowing at the hemline and the latter less voluminous.—MARIAN YOUNG.

The patriotic motif is spotlighted in spring fashions. Capes are red-letter news, too. So this ensemble, of light-weight worsted in Cadet Blue combines two new features. The cape-coat is quite military-looking, with brass buttons and an eagle embroidered in gold on the side of the scarlet silk-lined detachable cape.

Here's the perfect coat to wear over country clothes, to take along on a cruise, an automobile trip. It's of pure wool in beige with a colorful Scotch overplaid, and has a tuxedo front and deep patch pockets. Cut along swag lines, it is full and comfortable as a sports coat should be, but still manages not to look bulky. It would be smart over a brown skirt and orange sweater and equally nice over simple dresses in pastel wools.

A coat like this is a "general utility" item that should be in every wardrobe.

This is the type of casual coat which is the backbone of many a smart college girl's wardrobe. It's of beige, oatmeal tweed, finished with a detachable, lynx-dyed wolf collar.

Hollywood Sights & Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"Back Street" Screenplay by Bruce Manning and Felix Jackson from novel by Fannie Hurst. Directed by Robert Stevenson. Principals: Charles Boyer, Margaret Sullatan, Richard Carlson, Frank McHugh, Tim Holt, Frank Jenks, Esther Dale, Sami S. Hinds, Peggy Stuart, Neil O'Day, Kitty O'Neil, Nella Walker, Cecil Cunningham, Margorie Gateson, Dale Winter.

If the Smith girl hadn't been delayed that day in Cincinnati when Walter Saxel was waiting to marry her, the women of America would have been denied a renewal of the good cry they had over "Back Street" several years ago when Irene Dunne and John Boles played it.

The new version—first production of ex-New Orleans newspaperman Bruce Manning—is no less tough on the collective feminine handkerchief.

Ray Smith (Sullatan) was a free spirit in the C. C. of the early 1900's. Working in the family department store he met and played with the young "drummers" who came to town, and she knew how to keep them at a proper distance. She could have married the nice Stanton boy (Carlson), a drummer but a mechanic interested in horseless carriages, any time she said the word. But Ray didn't lose her heart until Walter Saxel (Boyer), the handsome financier, came into her life. When she fell in love for "back street" life is a heck of a life. Ray suffers and suffers, gives and gives, asks nothing and gets nothing more than the occasional spare time of her charming ace. Her one rebellion, when she is about to marry the nice Stanton boy, is quelled by his frankly selfish plea. He needs her, ergo and therefore—and so it goes at the end, years later, when both are old and gray.

"Back Street" is a well-made picture, with distinguished performances by the stars—especially appealing is Sullatan—and an engaging work by Carlson, McHugh, Holt and Jenks. The women should love it, the men would get an extra kick from the idea to punch the charming Mr. Saxel in the nose for treating our New that-a-way.

"MEET THE CRUMP" Screenplay by Alec Gortlieb. Directed by Edward Clive. Principals: Hugh Herbert, Lewis Howard, Jeanne Kelly, Virginia Katharine Adams, Sheri Howard, Richard Lane, Andrew Tombes.

Very little about this picture, including the title makes sense—wherein lies the trap. Herbert plays a potent magnet who has embezzled a scientist's five millions. Faced with a no-off. Woo-Woo decides to go home and changes his mind and as a stepmother declared a sane person, finally in his forces. He is now against a girl who is a doctor. With gag, and a few more, all 60 minutes of the film "Meet the Crump" is for its type.

African Natives Get Their First Look at a Nazi

The desert grapes are probably brought word to these sheet-shrouded African natives of the exploits up in Europe of these strange persons—the Nazis. And here, for the first time Africa gets a look at one, for the Berlin caption on this photograph tells us that it shows a German soldier conversing with natives, presumably in what is left of Italian Libya.

Hearing to be Held on Proposed Bill to Raise Salaries of Teachers

The state council of education would investigate to reach the "true value."

Some 8,000 teachers of that class now receive $100 monthly for eight month terms and another $300 get $100 monthly for terms of nine months.

The O'Neill bill also calls for new assessments on property subject to the annual five mill school tax to attain "the true value."

Achterman indicated the bill was destined for either radical amendment or slow extinction in committee.

Other phases of legislative activity included plans by the House appropriations committee to resume its inquiry into Governor James' $542,000,000 budget next Wednesday when Dr. John J. Shaw, secretary of health, will be questioned. James recommended $3,122,400 for the department in the next biennium, an increase of $127,000 over the present two-year period.

Acting Adjutant General Robert M. Vail will be heard Thursday at 10 a. m. on his $1,908,000 sum for military affairs; Secretary of Internal Affairs William S. Livengood Jr., at 11 a. m. on his appropriation of $640,000 and Secretary of Agriculture John S. Light at 1 p. m. on a $1,754,000 sum.

The committee heard from the banking and insurance departments and the securities commission yesterday.

No Escort Proposal Rejected

Asked at a press conference whether the delay on the legislation in the senate was having serious effect, the president asserted at first that he had better not answer.

But he went on to add that reporters were aware that he had stated ever since the legislation was submitted to congress that perhaps a delay at this time, in February or early March, does not affect immediate aid to the democracies, but will affect deliveries a little later on.

Confident of a "working majority," administration leaders called for right senate sessions today in a renewed drive to kill off numerous opposition amendments and hasten passage of the British aid bill.

THE PENNA. VOTE
Washington, March 7—(P)—Pennsylvania senators opposed each other in the first Senate roll call vote on amendments to a British aid bill.

The vote rejected a proposal by Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) to prohibit conveying, by American armed forces, of war shipments outside the western hemisphere. Senator James J. Davis (R) voted for the amendment and Senator Joseph F. Guffey (D) against it.

Democratic Leader Barkley, announcing his intention of holding the chamber in session until 10 o'clock tonight, said pending opposition amendments would be rejected by "a comfortable margin."

The immediate contest centered around determined attempts by opponents to write into the measure a provision prohibiting the use of United States armed forces outside the western hemisphere and American possessions.

Administration lieutenants took the position that these amendments might encourage Japanese "new order" expansion southward in the Orient, and also might seriously weaken the hand of Secretary of State Hull in dealings with foreign governments.

The first such amendment to claim consideration today was the proposal by Senator Clark (D-Mo.) to forbid the use of any appropriations under the British aid measure for the transportation of American troops out of the western hemisphere.

(From Page One)

In the heart of Balkan Semiland and with the continuing their advance.

Fer-Fer is more than 300 miles from the Kenya colony frontier, from which the British launched their drive, and more than 100 miles inland from Villaggio Duca Degli Abruzzi, which they took last Sunday.

The British also reported they had driven off "enemy" motorized detachments in Libya west of El Agheila. These presumably were German forces, with which the British have clashed before in that area.

Overnight aerial activity in the western European war zone was minor.

There were no indications of British aerial operations over Germany or German-occupied territory.

In Rome, Fascist Editor Virgilio Gayda asserted that Italy's armed forces had sunk 20 British warships, 25 submarines, 58 freighters and seven tankers, and also shot down 805 planes and destroyed 213 on the ground.

Premier Mussolini's High Command reported that Italian bombing planes attacked a strongly escorted British convoy in the eastern Mediterranean and hit a cruiser, a destroyer and three merchant ships.

LOOKING AHEAD
Philadelphia, March 7—(P)—Attorney Edward Rosenwald isn't in the army yet, but he expects to be, and already he's thinking of the cost of visits home after he's in camp.

Petitioning the Interstate Commerce Commission for lower rail and bus rates for those in military service, he explained.

"I consider a fare reduction a national need for the thousands in training," Rosenwald is 31 and single.
